How well pupils respond to and participate in the school's Collective Worship is outstanding.

- Our Lady Queen of Martyrs' is a deeply prayerful community. The beautiful sacred spaces created by staff and pupils give an atmosphere of reverence and joy, underpinned by excellent behaviour demonstrated by all pupils.
- All acts of Collective Worship are centred on the liturgical year and pupils can speak knowledgeably about this.
- There are many forms of Collective Worship – class, house team and whole school liturgies as well as opportunities for parents to participate. All pupils join in prayer, drama and sing joyfully; they understand that this is a way of communicating with, and praising God.
- Pupils take the initiative in leading prayer from the earliest age. They are creative in their planning of liturgy, incorporating drama, prayer postures and reflections as well as more traditional forms of prayer. Class and house team liturgy books are a beautiful record of these daily worships.
- Acts of Collective Worship reflect the Catholic character of the school and of the liturgical year. Pupils were able to discuss other faiths and demonstrated attitudes of respect and tolerance.
- Adults act as excellent role models for pupils and older pupils also act as role models for the younger children in the house team worship sessions. 'I wonder,' is used effectively throughout worship to develop pupil's thinking and results in a heartfelt response.
- Pupils recognise that the effect of living and working in a praying community has a positive effect on the development of pupils, they say, 'people share and are kind here'.

The quality of provision for Collective Worship is outstanding.

- Opportunities for Collective Worship are varied, daily and are central to the life of the school. They are linked to the liturgical year and to the Religious Education programme, Come and See. All pupils are actively involved.
- Class and house Collective Worship books are updated daily as liturgies take place and are a beautiful record of pupil planning and participation.
- Staff prayer is equally prominent in the school; each day begins with staff prayer, as do all meetings. Staff have taken part in a cathedral pilgrimage and walking retreat, they are keen to attend whatever their own religious background.

- Collective Worship is given the highest possible priority in terms of planning and resourcing.
- Parents, family members and parishioners are regular visitors to formal Collective Worship gatherings over the course of the year. They also enjoy prayer at home with the travelling crib. Parents talk positively about the impact this has had on their children.
- The parish priest visits the school regularly and chats to pupils informally during breaks as well as supporting First Holy Communion.
- Class teachers, who are also house group leaders, are skilled in helping pupils plan and deliver quality worship. They have a well-developed understanding of the purpose of Collective Worship and the wide variety of forms it can take. Staff, in particular those new to Catholic education, feel comfortable about approaching the Religious Education coordinator for advice about the planning of Collective Worship.

How well leaders and managers promote, monitor and evaluate the provision for Collective Worship is outstanding.

- The headteacher and Religious Education coordinator set a very high standard for Collective Worship in the school. They are models of outstanding practice for staff and pupils for both traditional and contemporary forms of prayer.
- They approach the leadership of Collective Worship with a joy and enthusiasm which is infectious. They work tirelessly with staff to ensure their skills are highly developed through individual mentoring and whole staff training.
- There is clear evidence of the quality of Collective Worship being monitored and evaluated. Records of observations and feedback are kept, evaluated and feed into school improvement plans.
- Surveys of staff, pupils and parents are regularly carried out and are extremely positive about the Collective Worship of the school. The information collated feeds into the school improvement plan.
- Governors identify Collective Worship as a real strength of the school. They work closely with the school to gain first-hand experience and ensure they are well informed. They provide very effective challenge and support.
- Leaders are committed to ensuring that staff are provided with stimulating resources and training.

How well pupils achieve and enjoy their learning in Religious Education is good.

- Pupils obviously enjoy their Religious Education lessons and take part enthusiastically. They say teachers make the lessons fun.
- All pupils concentrate well in lessons, creating an atmosphere conducive to learning.
- Observation records and Religious Education books demonstrate evidence of good progress within lessons and over time for all groups of pupils. The school tracking system monitors standards and progress rigorously.
- 'I can' statements are used consistently and effectively throughout the school so that pupils are aware of how well they have done and their future targets. Pupils are able to explain the colour coded tasks which differentiate the work set so that they are all challenged appropriately.
- Data shows that pupils acquire knowledge quickly and are secure in their understanding.
- Pupils are increasingly given opportunities to improve their work but the challenges set need to be more closely linked to their individual targets in order to make outstanding progress.
- Pupils have become skilled in using imagination; being able to empathise and reflect on religious ideas through use of 'I wonder' questions.
- Almost all groups of pupils, including disabled pupils and those with special educational needs are also making progress comparable to the progress of other pupils.
- Historically standards of attainment have often been below diocesan average but gaps are closing rapidly.

The quality of teaching and assessment in Religious Education is good.

- Teaching is at least good and shows some outstanding features.
- Quality resources are used to engage pupils effectively and they learn very well. Pupils describe their learning as 'fun'.
- Staff are developing their skills in levelling pupil's work and the use of 'driver' words to say what has been done well however this needs to continue to be developed in order to increase teacher confidence in accurately levelling work.
- Pupils are increasingly encouraged to improve the work they do, however this needs to be more closely linked to their personal targets to improve standards so that they are in line with the diocesan average.

- Planning is highly effective in ensuring work is appropriately differentiated. New staff are supported well through induction to promote good learning.
- Teachers mark work regularly and feedback given is positive and celebratory but does not always inform pupils as to how to improve their work further.
- Pupils are regularly involved in evaluating how well they have done through use of 'I can' statements.
- Pupils were able to explain their role in assessing their own work and that of their peers.
- Success is celebrated throughout the school through the house system: Carmel, Lourdes, Garabandal and Walsingham. This is recognised at Friday's awards assembly. Elected house captains announce the winners from each class, who have lived out the school mission, and warmly congratulate each person.

How well leaders and managers promote, monitor and evaluate the provision for Religious Education is good.

- Monitoring and evaluation for the provision for Religious Education is rigorous and robust. It has enabled leaders to plan effectively for rapid progress and this is now becoming embedded throughout the school.
- Leaders are driven in their desire to improve both teaching and learning across the school and in inspiring the staff and pupils to share their vision. As a result, Religious education has a very high profile in the life of the school. Clear steps for improvement are detailed in the school improvement plan and are impacting on standards.
- The Religious Education programme is delivered by staff imaginatively to give quality experiences of the Catholic Church and of other faiths. The school's links with their federated school offer opportunities to carry out joint levelling of work to ensure accuracy of levelling.
- The Religious Education curriculum meets the requirements of the Bishops' Conference.
- Sacramental preparation is delivered well and in accordance with diocesan policy.
- Governors regularly visit the school and are actively involved in monitoring and evaluation activities. They offer excellent support and challenge to the school.
