How well pupils achieve and enjoy their learning in Religious Education is good.

- From low starting points, almost all pupils from their varied starting points, make good progress in each key stage, with many achieving outstanding progress.
- Pupils confirm they really enjoy Religious Education; they have very positive attitudes, and all pupils speak enthusiastically about their learning, explaining how it helps them to understand how to live their lives. They apply themselves diligently.
- Behaviour for learning throughout the school is excellent enabling high quality learning to consistently take place.
- Pupils develop and apply a range of skills well, and as they reach upper Key Stage 2, pupils can interpret sources, reflect and evaluate, engage with religious ideas and integrate them into their lives. In a year 6 lesson the pupils reflected upon how they were being a witness. Their independent written work showed how they were able to make links to scripture, showing understanding of deep religious thinking.
- Evidence from book scrutiny and lesson observations generally show an excellent variety and range of learning activities where progress is evident.
- Pupils with special educational needs make at least expected progress and arrangements are in place to ensure that whenever necessary, pupils are supported in their learning by capable teaching assistants.
- This is particularly evident in upper Key Stage 2 where pupils were able to use information to discuss in depth the effect one person's views had on the lives of others and how this could be linked to the Gospels.
- The school and Trust had systems, procedures and policies throughout the covid period and this has enabled the school to make rapid progress across all groups.

The quality of teaching and assessment in Religious Education is outstanding.

- A range of strategies are used effectively to promote excellent attitudes to learning and pupils are frequently affirmed and rewarded for their efforts.
- Teachers in all key stages have high expectations and plan challenging and focused learning activities. They ensure that a range of teaching and learning styles are used and this together with quality resources results in some outstanding learning.
- Religious Education has a prominent profile throughout the school and figures highly in school improvement planning. Religious education is a key priority in the current year's plan.
- Across EYFS, activities were purposeful. Effective teaching and learning which was supported and moved learning on, give pupils an excellent depth of knowledge of the Pentecost topic. When asked what she was working on and why, a young pupil told one of the inspectors, she was acting the Pentecost day and "I am one of the disciples"
- Targeted questioning is used very well to assess understanding, monitor progress, and reinforce the learning objective. As a result, pupils are excited and engaged and demonstrate very positive attitudes to their learning. A year 1 lesson skilfully retrieved previous knowledge about Easter and used this to further develop the pupils' subject knowledge of the next season in the liturgical year. Pupils were challenged through good questioning and answering. The teacher and other staff members skilfully utilised different activities through the lesson which served to maintain pupil engagement. Excellent written work was seen.
- Teachers have very good subject knowledge and continually strive to develop this through training offered by the Diocese, support of the Religious Education leaders, the deputy headteacher, headteacher and the Trust. Staff recognise the support they received from the leaders in school and can clearly articulate how this impacts the quality of their teaching. This in turn contributes to highly effective teaching.
- School leaders have focused on raising expectations and encouraging more innovative and creative approaches to teaching Religious Education. This has resulted in pupils thoroughly looking forward to and enjoying their work. Teaching, learning, and assessment is consistently good with many outstanding features evident in lessons. This resulted in all pupils making at least good and often outstanding progress.

How well leaders and managers promote, monitor and evaluate the provision for Religious Education is outstanding.

- Progress in Religious Education is tracked and monitored robustly by the headteacher using a Trust data system. The headteacher, along with the deputy headteacher, gathers information at pupil progress meetings and is able to identify the progress of individuals and groups. She is then able to put in place any additional support to close any gaps in knowledge and skills.
