How good outcomes are for individuals and groups of pupils

Pupils' achievement in Religious Education is outstanding. At the end of Key Stage 3 the majority achieve at least Level 5 with a significant number either reaching or working within Level 6. Consequently the baseline is set for continued progress in Key Stage 4. This is reflected in performance at the end of Year 11 with GCSE results well above the national average in 2009, 2010 and only slightly below in 2011. In 2011 18.24% achieved A*-A which approaches double the national figure when considered alongside the percentage of the total cohort. For grades A*-C the achievement rate of 61.37% is almost triple the national figure, again when compared to the percentage of the total cohort. Overall 94.5 % of the 2011 cohort achieved A*-G. The small number of pupils not successful in the full course achieved passes at the end of Year 10, thereby each gaining a half GCSE. Overall this ranks Key Stage 4 performance at GCSE as second highest in the college and outstanding compared with national data. In the Sixth Form results for the small AS/A2 cohort have continued to rise. Figures for 2011 indicate a maintained 100% pass rate with six out of nine entries meeting or exceeding target grades. In the same time-frame, results for the accredited general course show significant increases in both Level 2 and Level 3. Achievement in each Key Stage and in the Sixth Form is consistent with attainment in class. Pupils are motivated to attain generally above average in relation to their age, stage and starting points. This is underpinned through learning and teaching that challenges their pursuit of knowledge, understanding and ability to reflect on meaning.

The quality of pupils' learning and their progress in Religious Education is outstanding. They are encouraged to be self-starters and to maximise each learning opportunity. Both independent and shared learning experiences are matched to differentiated needs. There is clear challenge through progression routes that provide pupils with confidence to remain focused and on task. They seek support when necessary. Pupils are keen to demonstrate knowledge and understanding through informed questioning and answers. They are confident to discuss outcomes. Learning is supported by opportunities for reflection. Systems for tracking and assessment encourage pupils' participation in learning and their contribution to setting targets. Quality learning is enriched by outstanding behaviour. Pupils have great respect for Religious Education. They endorse its relevance and rigour.

The extent to which pupils contribute to and benefit from the Catholic life of the college is outstanding. They understand its mission and vision. They provide examples of how they contribute to its fulfilment through college, diocesan, national and global involvement. They are proud of the Catholicity of the college. Pupils speak about its history of ministry to themselves and others. They know well the levels of contribution expected from them. Those of other faiths and religions feel well supported and included. Others with no faith or religion regard Catholic Life as supportive of their own world views especially toward the well-being of others. In Religious Education pupils clearly articulate the relevance of its content to their personal lives and interaction with contemporary society. Their attitudes and actions demonstrate mature levels of spiritual and moral development.

Pupils' response to and participation in Collective Worship is outstanding. They participate well both individually and collectively. Pupils value opportunities for practical involvement. Many value the quality of occasions for stillness and personal reflection. They are appreciative of the retreat programme as a support to their prayer lives. Pupils understand the Liturgical Year and regard the celebratory aspects of Easter and Christmas as particular strengths. They are clear about the contribution of Collective Worship to their own spiritual and moral development. They understand its relevance to the needs and benefits of society.

Assessment decisions are well linked with tracking and target setting. There is accurate understanding and usage of Levels of Attainment by pupils and staff. Pupils are clear about how assessment celebrates achievement and attainment. They are equally clear about how to improve. Assessment for learning is well structured and amplified through quality marking and annotation of pupils' work. A sample was selected for scrutiny and used in conjunction with random selections from class. Pupils' work shows authenticity and differentiation. Attention is given to presentation. There is positive and challenging marking accompanied by personal targets. Peer marking and assessment is also challenging and searching. Consequently assessment enables pupils to reflect on their own learning and support progress.

The extent to which the Religious Education curriculum meets pupils' needs is outstanding. In Key Stage 3 Icons has been developed through a programme enriched with innovative learning strategies. Levels of Attainment are well embedded. In Key Stage 4 the GCSE specification is established and successful. The general course is a specific strength in terms of management, organisation and delivery. In Key Stage 4 and beyond, all pupils undertake accredited courses. This serves to maintain the high profile of Religious Education. All programmes support the Aims of Religious Education required by the Bishops of England and Wales. The content provides a major contribution to spiritual and moral development.

The quality of Collective Worship provided by the college is outstanding. Daily form time gatherings and weekly assemblies are well resourced by themes and supporting prayer. These in turn are aligned to the Liturgical Year. The policy and its implementation is efficiently monitored by senior and middle leadership together with the Liturgy Group. Student Voice is also part of this process. The Collective Worship Working Group enables staff and pupils to plan Masses, services and celebrations throughout the year. Collective Worship is for staff, pupils, parents and visitors. It is shared jointly when appropriate. Provision demonstrates clear understanding and support of Catholic Life.
