RE1 How well pupils achieve and enjoy their learning in Religious Education

- Good progress is made in each key stage, including groups of students. Clear and imaginative initiatives are in place to close any gaps, and, as a result, effective progress is made.
- Pupils are religiously literate and engaged young people. Oracy is highly impressive and is both ethically and theologically based. In the best lessons, pupils' reasoning is impressive and well beyond pupils' years.
- Pupils are actively engaged in lessons. The curriculum supports pupils in developing knowledge, understanding and skill, and pupils collaborate effectively in lessons. Almost all concentrate well.
- Pupils are passionate and enthusiastic learners; they enjoy challenging activities and are rarely off task.
- There is a strong history of academic success in terms of attainment and progress, both internally and at diocesan level. Pupils look forward to realising and reaping their rewards at all key stages. Tracking pupils' achievements is informative and effective.
- Assessment in pupils' books demonstrates clear progress and is supported by staff marking and feedback.

RE2 The quality of teaching, learning and assessment in Religious Education

- Religious Education is supported by highly effective teachers who plan and implement effective lessons to enable pupils to thrive. Teaching and learning are given the highest priority, evidenced in the teaching and learning bulletin.
- Most lessons are outstanding, and where they are not, leaders have taken steps to support and coach staff to ensure the same high standards throughout the department.
- Teachers' confidence inspires learners to engage and excel in their studies.
- A wide range of teaching strategies is implemented effectively, and collaboration between pupils of all abilities is particularly effective.

- All pupils are engaged in the evaluation of learning through regular summative and formative assessment and the timely intervention of staff.
- Time is used effectively. There is a good pace to lessons which is productive but also isn't at the expense of the mastery and consolidation of learning.
- Questioning is highly effective in the best lessons, and where it is not, it is developing rapidly to ensure effective learning.
- Resources are of high quality; curriculum maps and knowledge organisers are professional and utilised in many ways to support the pupils' development.
- The passion for Religious Education amongst the team is infectious; consequently, pupils respond enthusiastically.
- High-quality feedback is a strength of the department; pupils respond appropriately and systematically to further their educational development.

- Celebration of achievement is multi-faceted and motivates pupils at all levels.

RE3 How well leaders and governors promote, monitor, and evaluate the provision for Religious Education

- Leaders ensure Religious Education meets the demands of the Bishops' Conference of England and Wales and the requirements of the Archbishop of Birmingham in each key stage.
- Appropriate curriculum time is dedicated to Religious Education. Core Religious Education in the sixth form, a previous development point, has been developed into a real strength of the curriculum. Students in Key Stage 5 enthusiastically engage and benefit from the well-planned and effective provision.
- Leaders and governors ensure that Religious Education has parity with other core subjects, including financial resourcing.
- Self-evaluation is rigorous, open, and honest, including monitoring data, achievement points, learning walks, work scrutiny and pupil voice. As a result, the methodology deployed by the Religious Education team has been shared across the school. It has led to direct actions, including the production of weekly departmental bulletins.
- The curriculum leader holds an inspiring vision for Religious Education. As a result, Religious Education is at the forefront of whole school development and a flagship department. Innovation is a real strength, for example, the trial of mixed ability teaching in Year 10, raising standards, engagement, and enjoyment in Religious Education.
- Religious Education is imaginatively planned and structured.

COLLECTIVE WORSHIP

CW1 How well pupils respond to and participate in the school's Collective Worship

- Acts of Collective Worship engage pupils. Outside space is utilised effectively to enable the whole school community to gather together for worship. Pupils take the lead in facilitating prayer within the school; for example, the Year 9 football team led the whole-school Lenten worship.
- As a result of engaging worship, pupils are reflective and responsive. They can hold respectful silence and appropriately contribute to communal prayer.
- Pupils are proud of the school prayer they have written and use it at every opportunity.
- Liturgical music is a strength, and pupils have continued to lead and develop the music ministry within the school independently, without staff facilitation.
- Pupils take the initiative and are creative in their liturgical planning. They are supported by structured liturgical planning and chaplaincy representatives. Pupils enthusiastically and strategically 'book in' their form groups for chaplaincy opportunities beyond the form group.
- Pupils are confident in a wide range of worship styles, from prayerful adoration of the Blessed Sacrament and Marian processions to open prayer and affirmation experiences.
- Prayer spaces are appropriate and are almost always the focus of Collective Worship.
- Developing students' leadership to become extraordinary ministers of the Eucharist enhances the opportunities for pupil participation and deepens their engagement in the liturgy.
- Pupils have an excellent knowledge of the liturgical year and the seasons and feasts of the Church. They have an appreciation of the lives of the saints and an awareness of the spiritual example of their patron, Bishop William Bernard Ullathorne.
- The school is a faithful community which shapes the spiritual and moral development of all.

CW2 The quality of Collective Worship provided by the school

- Collective Worship is central to the life of the school and operates at different levels: whole school, year groups, form groups and chaplaincy teams.
- Prayer is a feature of all experiences across the school, including before sporting fixtures.

- Prayer has a clear purpose and message appropriate for the students and based on the liturgical year using the 'Ullathorne Way'.
- Collective Worship is given the highest priority. It is well resourced and supported. This is evident in the imaginative liturgical planning completed at MAC level and subsequently led by the liturgical planning team at Bishop Ullathorne.
- Relevant staff are highly skilled in liturgical planning, and many are skilled in helping pupils plan. A small number of staff require further coaching to support pupils more wholeheartedly.

CW3 How well leaders and governors promote, monitor, and evaluate the provision for Collective Worship

- Leaders and the school chaplain have expert knowledge of Collective Worship and what it should include.
- There is an excellent understanding of the Church's year and in making the rich traditions accessible and meaningful for pupils at all stages.
- Leaders are visible witnesses to outstanding Collective Worship and are excellent role models for all staff and pupils.
- Pupils' planning opportunities are extensive; they are responsible for liturgical music and year group and form group liturgical preparations.
- Collective Worship is given the highest priority. A small number of staff require a bespoke approach to ensure they have the same insight in supporting the pupils, especially during form time.
- Quality assurance and self-evaluation of Collective Worship are regular and all-encompassing; they lead to further practical developments.
